The Plagues: Bridge from Creation to Revelation

Rabbi Dovid Schwartz
Jewish Heritage Center

Rabbi Dovid Schwartz, Associate Director of the Jewish Heritage Center, studied at the Mir Yeshiva in Jerusalem and received his ordination from Mesivta Rabbi Chaim Berlin in Brooklyn. Rabbi Schwartz first taught at the Hebrew Theological College in Skokie, Illinois where his papers were published in the College's Rabbinic-academic journals. Rabbi Schwartz went on to teach at various yeshivas in the metropolitan New York area before joining the Jewish Heritage Center of Queens and Long Island in 1995 where he currently serves as Associate Director. He oversees the Center's individualized Torah Tutorial program and teaches the popular Tuesday night beginners series. Absorbing approaches from the eclectic schools of Jewish thought elucidated by great twentieth century Torah personalities Rabbi Schwartz's presentations are known for their depth, wit, clarity and humor.
